Why do this activity on a tray?

Maria Montessori recommended presenting the activities on a tray to facilitate the child's understanding and the need to order and organize the games on a shelf. According to Maria Montessori the tray represents: order, sequencing, limits, concentration, ease, independence... among many other things.

ORDER: because the material is displayed in an aesthetically pleasing and orderly way, in such a way that it is easy to put everything back as it was.

LIMITS: the tray delimits the workspace, so that we avoid being disturbed or invading the space of others.

CONCENTRATION: the fact that everything is tidy and arranged according to what we are going to use it makes it easier for the child not to be distracted and to be present and attentive to his or her activity.

EASE: we isolate the activity, each tray contains an exercise, in this way we avoid all the difficulties that may exist. This avoids any kind of frustration

INDEPENDENCE: the tray facilitates the moment of choosing a material, the child does not need anything more than to take the tray and go to work on it.

TRANSPORT: the tray facilitates transport when carrying various objects somewhere.
